A LETTER TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS

Well, it's that time of the year again!

Yes, it's the holiday season. And at The Disney Channel, the holidays are not just a time to spend with family and friends, but also a time to honor our country's teachers.

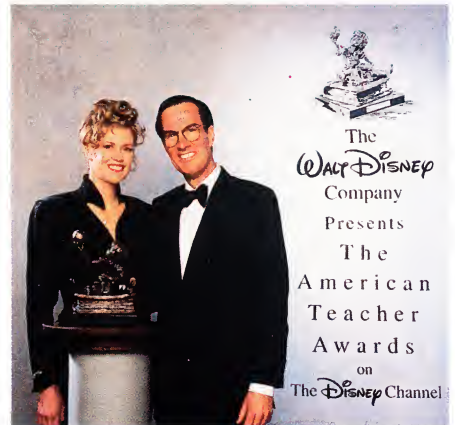

The Walt Disney Company Presents The American Teacher Awards, our newest holiday tradition, will have its third annual premiere on December 6 at 7:00 p.m. (ET/PT). As those of you who have seen our program these past two years know, the purpose of The American Teacher Awards is to honor teachers and the teaching profession in the same way our society honors our favorite entertainers, sports stars, and political heroes.

The gala ceremony, telecast live from Hollywood, pays tribute to the accomplishments of 36 extraordinary elementary and secondary school teachers who cumulatively provide a portrait of the ideal teacher. Last year, celebrities such as Arnold Schwarzenegger, Jay Leno, Don Johnson, and Melanie Griffith (whom you see pictured with me) shared anecdotes about their school days and favorite teachers as they introduced the teacher honorees. And this year, more celebrities, entertainment, and surprises are in store.

The American Teacher Awards receives support from the country's leading educational organizations, whose representatives help select the honored teachers from the thousands of applications that are submitted each year. The program is presented in partnership with The Coca-Cola Company and Delta Air Lines.

We hope that The American Teacher Awards will stimulate our audience to think more positively about teachers and education and even to consider teaching as a career. Join us as we at The Disney Channel salute our country's truly unsung heroes—America's teachers.

John F. Cooke
President of The Disney Channel

P.S. In January, be sure to watch The Ernest Green Story, a Disney Channel Premiere Film that recounts the true story of nine African-American high school students who enrolled in an all-white Southern high school in 1957. Don't miss this emotionally-charged film, which captures a poignant moment in our nation's civil rights history.

Jane Zilgiras

- Head, arms and legs crafted of fine bisque porcelain
- Hand-crafted rocking horse is included at no extra charge

Doll and rocking horse shown smaller than actual size. Doll is 17" tall when seated on horse.

Giddy-up Horsey!

Of all the toys in "Amy's" playroom, her rocking horse is her most favorite of all! Riding on her horsey is so much fun, and "Amy" feels like such a big girl because she can make him go all by herself.

Crafted of fine bisque porcelain and painted by hand in the softest natural hues, this extraordinarily lifelike doll is the creation of Jane Zidjunas, one of the world's best known and best loved doll artists.

"Amy's" baby fine blonde hair is caught up in a cascade of curls with a pretty bow that matches the soft pastels of her romper. With the gentle blush of her cheeks and a glow of happiness in her eyes, she is the picture of the joy found in toddlerhood.

Amy is available exclusively from The Hamilton Collection for only $135 payable in five convenient payments. As her owner, you will have the right—never the obligation—to acquire future Jane Zidjunas issues.

We are proud to bring you "Amy," one of Jane's best works ever and we know you will be proud to own her. Submit your reservation today! © 1992 HC. All Rights Reserved.

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Computer Software TWO NEW RELEASES

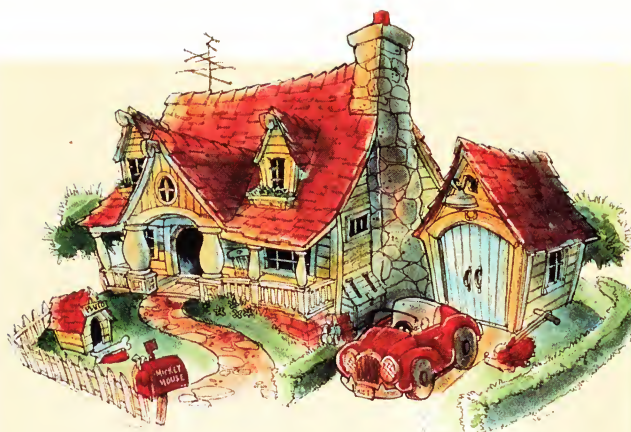

Walt Disney Computer Software recently released two great new software programs that are on store shelves now. With Disney's Aladdin Print Kit, young computer whizzes can not only relive the new Disney animated hit but also create a variety of items, ranging from greeting cards and banners to posters, that feature the film's characters. The suggested retail price for the Aladdin Print Kit is $19.95.

Young moviemakers can practice their craft with Stunt Island: The Flying and Filming Simulation. Developed with input from Hollywood stunt directors, Stunt Island allows players to design, fly, film, edit, and show their own stunt flying films.

Holiday Moviegoers COMING TO A THEATER NEAR YOU

For moviegoers this holiday season, Walt Disney Pictures has two great films. Coming to theaters around the country on November 25 is Aladdin. And on December 11, Walt Disney Pictures and Jim Henson Productions present The Muppet Christmas Carol, with Michael Caine playing none other than Scrooge.

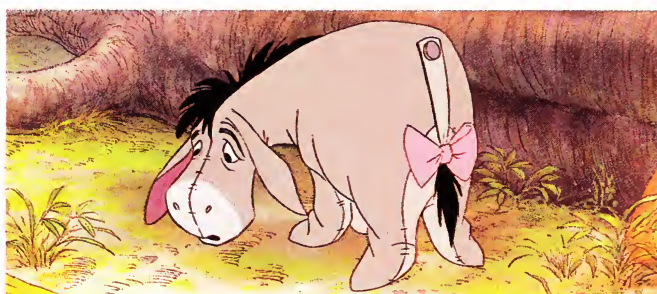

In Disneyland MICKEY'S TOONTOWN OPENS IN JANUARY

This January, for the first time in 20 years, a whole new land will be added to Disneyland Park. Consisting of three acres adjacent to "It's a Small World," Mickey's ToonTown will become the permanent home of Mickey Mouse and all his cartoon friends. Mickey's ToonTown differs from Disneyland's other lands because it's a complete community, including a downtown, a suburban neighborhood, and rural areas that feature Disney cartoon characters at home, work and play. The characters will have houses, attractions and activities of their own, with each design reflecting their unique personalities. For example in "Goofy's Bounce House" guests can literally bounce off the walls and the furniture; Gadget, from Chip 'n' Dale's Rescue Rangers, has a workshop that houses a rollercoaster. Mickey's ToonTown opens in Disneyland in late January.

From Hyperion Books THE ULTIMATE GUIDE TO DISNEY TRIVIA

Who was the original voice of Mickey Mouse? Why does Eeyore wear a pink bow on his tail? The answers are to be found in The Ultimate Disney Trivia Book from Hyperion Books, which is to be released on December 1. Written by Kevin Neary, an employee of The Disney Stores, and by our own Dave Smith, Archivist of The Walt Disney Company, this is the definitive volume on Disney trivia. With 999 questions and over 100 illustrations, The Ultimate Disney Trivia Book covers the classic characters, animated and live-action films, TV shows, theme parks, and even Walt himself. It's the ultimate test of knowledge for Disney devotees.

COMING ATTRACTIONS AND BEHIND THE SCENES

Now in Production NEWS FROM AVONLEA

The Disney Channel's Emmy-winning series Avonlea is currently in production for its fourth season. New episodes debut in March, and once again, change is coming to the small hamlet on Prince Edward Island and to the members of the King family. There's family news from Olivia and Jasper, plus when Aunt Hetty King takes a sabbatical from her teaching post, a new family comes to town. They're the Pettibones: a widower-father and his three children. Mr. Pettibone is Hetty King's replacement at the Avonlea school, and with his family's arrival life will never be quite the same for Hetty and her niece Felicity.

And of course, once again Avonlea boasts a roster of very special guest stars in episodes that will move, enthrall, and entertain all members of the family.

Behind the Scenes THE DISNEY CHANNEL SALUTES OLDER AMERICANS

On January 10, The Disney Channel presents the world premiere of a unique special: Ageless Heroes. Hosted by newsman Sander Vanocur, the program examines a group of extraordinary Americans who, belying their physical ages, still make major contributions to our society. Among those profiled, you'll meet Dr. Anne Belcher, an amazing physician in her 90s who continues to practice medicine in New York City.

The special serves to launch a new series of interstitial profiles, which air Mondays following Avonlea, beginning January 18. Like the profile of Dr. Belcher, the stories of Ageless Heroes pay tribute to dynamic older Americans who continue to make an important difference in our lives.

Together FAMILY MEETINGS

Since the first families sat around primitive fire pits in cold, dark caves, there have been family meetings, says Jane Conoley, professor and chairman of the department of Educational Psychology at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. Long ago such discussions were probably used for real-world problem-solving; planning how to best cross the raging river on a trip west or planning what chores needed doing in the morning.

Recent research, Conoley adds, shows that families with rituals for celebrating, planning, and problem-solving are psychologically healthier, especially if there is an ongoing, regular time set aside to discuss family matters.

"Family meetings are not meant to be a dreaded time. They are not punishment periods. A family meeting is a time to discuss, to air compliments, to plan activities or schedules, and to solve problems," Conoley says. "It's not a group confession time."

Conoley suggests that parents establish a family meeting routine when children are young—before adolescence, if possible—because teenagers who are not accustomed to the practice might balk at the perceived formality. She observes there is no ideal approach to, or agenda for, a meeting, but the time can be devoted to anything from reviewing the complex family calendar of activities to planning for a special trip.

Conoley warns parents to avoid meetings that deteriorate into gripe sessions. Any criticism—either parent-to-parent or to the children—should be delivered individually, and not at the family meeting. If there are decisions that must be made unilaterally, the parents should be clear that these issues are not up for discussion.

Solving problems shouldn't be the only concern of family meetings. "Try to keep a light, relaxed touch," Conoley says. "Don't just hold meetings when there is a crisis."

Conoley says she and her husband—also a psychologist—have a weekly family meeting with their children, a time when everyone knows they will have a meal together. "It's a counterweight to the fragmentation of life today," she says, "and it helps keep us communicating."

Good for You TEAM SPORTS AND KIDS

The benefits of involving children in sports are generally well-known: team sports offer fitness and fun and teach children how to work and play well with others.

But there are some risks to team sports, and experts suggest that parents be aware of a few basics before they leave their child on the practice field.

The good news is that pre-adolescent children don't have high injury rates if they are well-supervised and use appropriate, functional safety equipment, says William Risser, M.D., professor of Pediatrics at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston and chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics' Committee on Sports Medicine and Fitness. It is only as children get heavier and begin to play the more dangerous sports—football, wrestling and hockey—that injury rates rise.

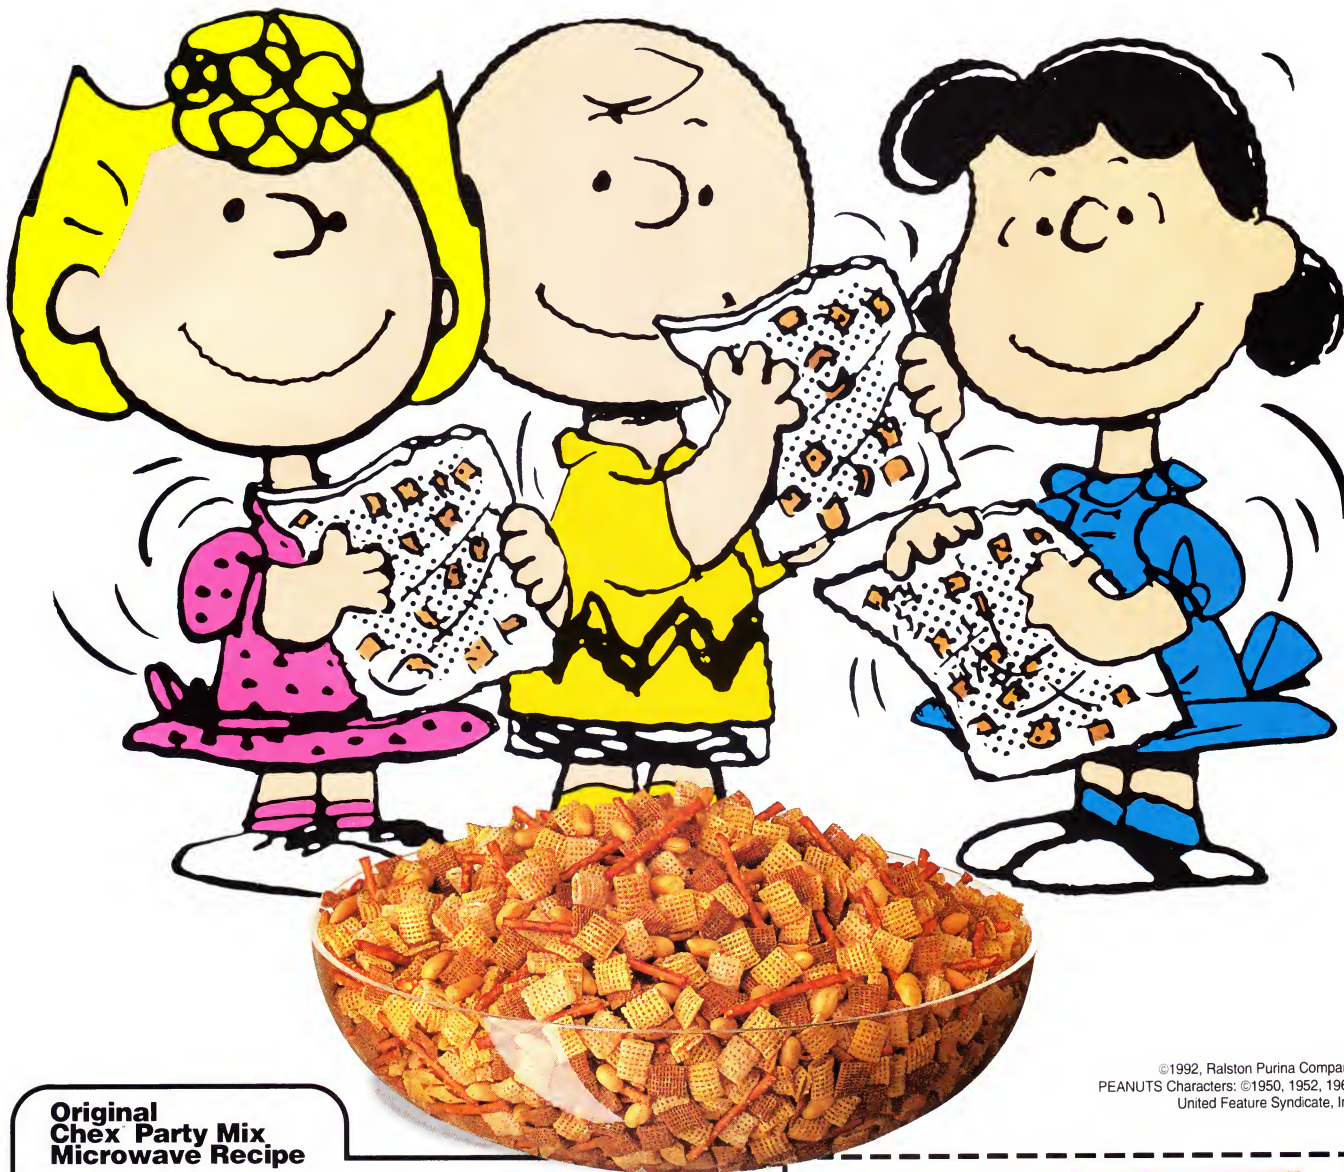

Parents should make sure that safety equipment is required, that it fits the players, and that the equipment is in good condition.

Risser adds that coaches should enforce the rules of any game aggressively because many of the rules relate to basic safety. "Coaches," he says, "should also instruct the children in proper technique and provide adequate warm-up periods before a game. Many injuries are caused by improper technique."

Coaches and parents should make sure that the playing environment is safe, that glass or debris is removed from the playing field, and that any obstacles a child

NEWS FROM FAMILYFUN

In its November/December issue, FamilyFun magazine held its first annual T.O.Y. Awards. To determine the winners, 375 toy testers, ages 2 to 10, played with more than 200 new toys for over 15,000 hours. On this, and on the next two pages, we'll take a look at some of the award-winning toys, which are grouped in three age ranges: 2 to 4; 5 to 7; and 8 to 10. could run into are removed or well-marked. Adults supervising the sport should know first aid and CPR, adds Risser, and coaches must ensure that the players avoid training excesses. Children who develop muscle aches and pains should take a few days off until they are back to normal.

Coaches should also make sure players get adequate fluids—especially in warmer climates—and provide periodic breaks for rest and water. On hot and humid days, Risser says players should wear limited, lightweight clothing.

Despite all these caveats, Risser emphasizes that there is a sport for every child, even those with chronic medical conditions or unique limitations. "Some kids who have certain conditions—most commonly, asthma—are, in fact, typically over-restricted. Most asthmatics can play any sport they want to, if they are taking the right medications."

For children with rare conditions—such as having only one kidney or having uncorrectable vision in one eye—some sports may not be a good idea, says Risser. "But if you have to disqualify a kid from one sport, chances are there is another sport that will be fine and will offer little or no risk to the child."

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that parents discuss any particular concerns about their child and a sport with their physician. "The key," says Risser, "is that the children are having fun and that the programs are adjusted to their developmental level and interests."

After Hours SNOWBOARDING

Think of it as skateboarding down the slopes.

"Snowboarding is the coolest thing you can do on snow," says Lee Crane, managing editor of Transworld Snowboarding Magazine.

Crane, once a ski instructor, packed away his skis and poles for the hottest new trend in winter sports: snowboarding.

Now a $170 million-a-year industry, more than 1.5 million people are snowboarding. The majority are ultra-young: Seventeen percent are between seven and 11 years old, and 56 percent are between 12 and 24, according to the National Association of Ski Retailers.

The sport got its start in the early '80s when Sherman Poppin, of Michigan, made his daughters a sledding toy by nailing two skis side-by-side and attaching a 1/4-inch plywood plank to serve as a standing deck. He began selling the ski-sleds for $30—Poppin called them

KidsCooking A HOLIDAY DRINK KIDS WILL LOVE

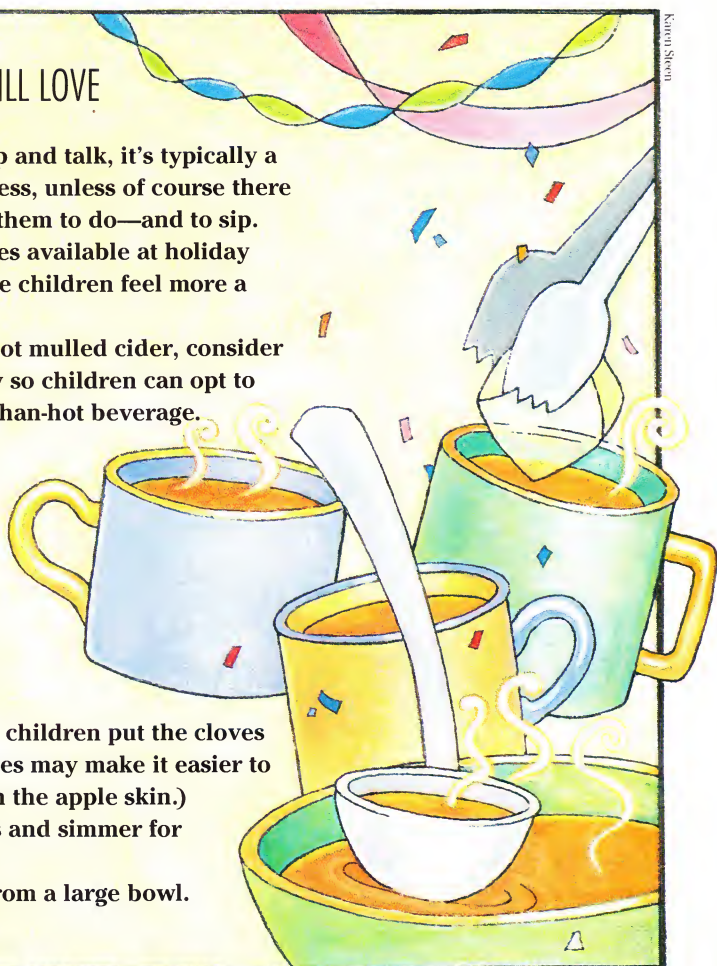

When parents gather to sip and talk, it's typically a time for children to get restless, unless of course there is something interesting for them to do—and to sip. Having kid-friendly beverages available at holiday party time will help make the children feel more a part of the party.

If serving the traditional hot mulled cider, consider putting an ice bucket nearby so children can opt to add ice if they prefer a less-than-hot beverage.

Traditional Mulled Cider

- 1/2 gallon cider
- 2 apples
- 4 3-inch cinnamon sticks
- 5 whole allspice cloves

1. Before the party, let the children put the cloves into the apples. (Thimbles may make it easier to press the cloves through the apple skin.)
 2. Combine all ingredients and simmer for 30 minutes.
 3. Serve hot with a ladle from a large bowl.
- Serves 16.

"Snurfers"—and the concept took hold.

Now there are over 30 companies making snowboards, and the designs—as well as their price tags—have become sophisticated. Snowboards come with bindings but are worn with after-ski boots, and no poles are used. They range from $300 to $500, but can be rented at many blading and skating shops and at some ski stores.

While snowboarding was first considered the black sheep of ski sports, Crane says now all but a few resorts allow snowboarding on their slopes. Unlike skiing, he says, it's easier to go from a beginning to an intermediate skill level with snowboarding. Many resorts have snowboarding classes for children and adults.

Crane suggests that families start with a few lessons, and then both the children and the parents will be ready to go it alone. Wrist guards—like those used in blading—and knee pads worn under baggy pants are recommended.

Crane says children like snowboarding better than skiing because "it's more creative, you feel closer to the snow, it's fast, and it's fun."

Holiday Time WHEN A PET SOUNDS LIKE A GREAT GIFT

It's adorable—a darling little kitten peeking out of the top of a Christmas stocking or a puppy jumping out of a gift box to greet the family. But experts warn that if you are not an intimate member of the family, it may not be a good idea to give a pet as a holiday gift.

The problem, says Jacque Schultz, a manager with Companion Animal Services in New York, is that the pet has to specifically meet the needs and expectations for an entire family.

While a gift giver usually has the children in mind when selecting a pet, Schultz says it is the parents who are ultimately responsible for its care. And when the children's social lives and interests change in adolescence, it will be the parents who pick up the pet-related chores that may have once seemed so exciting to a younger child.

When family members think of a perfect pet, one person imagines a Great Dane while another sees a Miniature Poodle. People's pet preferences vary, Schultz says, and often people don't realize what they want until they see a particular animal and discuss the possibilities.

Some issues are more practical: If the living room carpet is off-white, a dark-haired animal may not be an easy-to-live-with choice. Also important in choosing a pet is the problem of allergies. A prospective gift-giver should know if anyone in the family is allergic to pet hair, dander or saliva.

And then there's the challenge of the holidays themselves, which Schultz says are absolutely the worst time to bring a new animal into a home. "The tantalizing decorations, the rich food, the chaos, the people—these all pose risks to a new puppy or kitten."

Schultz does have advice for those wishing to give friends or relatives a pet for the holidays: Consider making up a starter-kit basket, with a check, or a voucher good for one free kitten or puppy at the local animal shelter. Appropriate bowls and toys and an information book could be added to make the gift festive.

Then when life settles down, the family can go out together to select—and bond with—a pet they can enjoy for years to come.

Under My Spell

From the moment Paula Abdul rises like Peter Pan suspended high above the Yokohama stage, you know you are in for a very lively concert experience. Joining her band and troupe of top dancers, Paula launches into "Spellbound," the title tune from her smash 1991 album. What follows is a multimedia extravaganza of impeccable choreography, striking costumes, and certified #1 hits from the former L.A. Lakers cheerleader who designed the moves for George Michael, Duran Duran, ZZ Top, Dolly Parton, and Janet Jackson.

It's fitting that we catch Paula at her best while on tour in Japan, where millions of fans track her every media move. Commenting on the typically reserved audiences, she says, "I was told that the crowds would be quiet, but they stood up for the first song and stayed standing for the entire concert. It's incredibly exciting to see that these people know my music and are singing along."

Under My Spell is a kaleidoscope of set and costume changes as Paula sings her heart out, reliving a string of chart-toppers from her debut album Forever Your Girl, which had worldwide sales of well over 10 million. The sweet sensuality of "Rush Rush" is contrasted with the wild avant-garde costumes and dance moves of "In A Funky Way."

For Disney audiences, it's a special treat when Paula sings and dances with her animated cartoon partner "Scat Kat" against a giant video wall that fills the stage. Then, on stage, Paula performs a superb rendition of Prince's song "You." Another treat is the romantic saxophone solo that begins Abdul's hit "Blowing Kisses in the Wind" as her dancers fly through a moody stage atmosphere that comes complete with wreaths of fog and swirling cloud effects.

Paula's command of the stage as a singer, dancer and choreographer is a tour-de-force in modern stage power. She explains, "When I was growing up, I idolized the stars who could do it all like Gene Kelly, Judy Garland, and Fred Astaire." It is in the great tradition of these artists/entertainers that Paula excels, adding her own special touch.

During the concert she thanks the adoring Japanese fans and adds, "Tanoshinderu?" which means "Are you having a good time?" The massive response is proof positive that Paula Abdul enchants and excites like no other World Class star.

Rising Star

By Amy Boothe Green

At age 23, Morris Chestnut has appeared in the acclaimed film Boyz n The Hood and has a new series called Out All Night. Now, with his leading role in The Ernest Green Story, Chestnut demonstrates that he's one of Hollywood's brightest lights.

From inside the police car, he eyes the faces that surround him. Fists pound against the car's shiny black hood, its windows, its top. "Go home," the faces yell. "Go back to Africa!" Then the director yells "Cut!"—but the extras keep yelling.

Goose bumps cover actor Morris Chestnut. For a split second, reality blurs while filming The Disney Channel's latest Premiere Film The Ernest Green Story. Morris Chestnut portrays Green, one of nine students who, in 1957, were the first African-Americans to attend the previously all-white Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Chestnut, whose own high school experience was at an ethnically diverse high school in Cerritos, California, realizes the full impact of Green's story. "Wow. This is 1992. I don't know, but I can really imagine what those kids actually felt back in 1957."

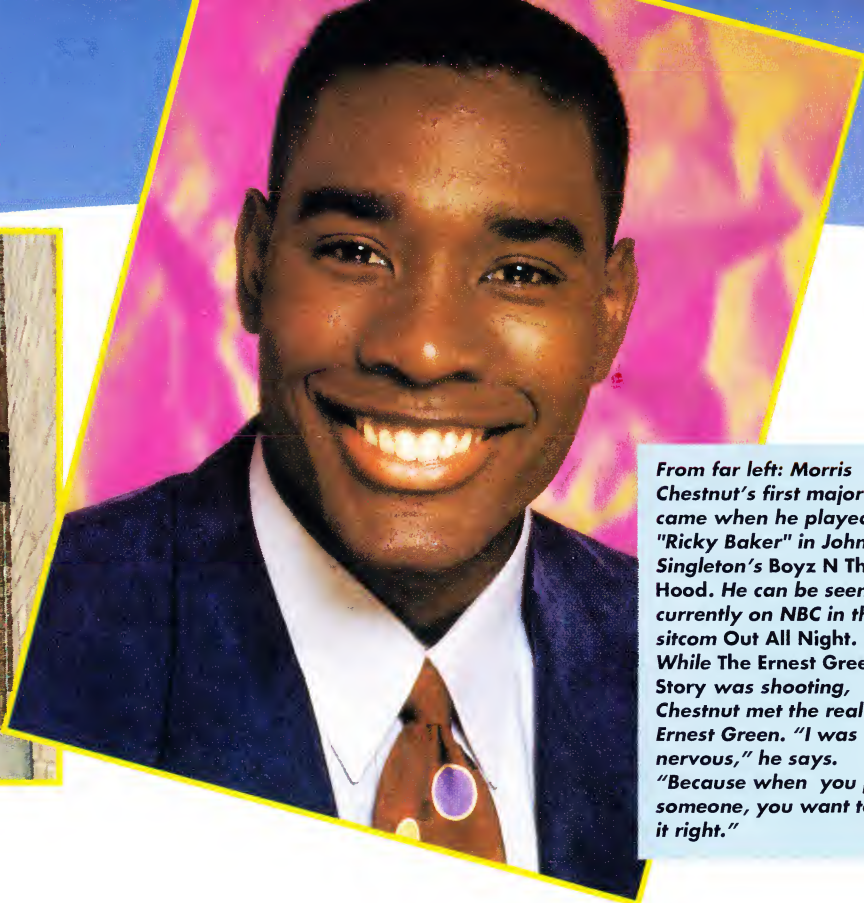

In the fall of that year, despite an earlier, unanimous Supreme Court decision that ended segregation, Green and eight other African-American students were greeted at the school not only by a mob of irate citizens but also by the Arkansas National Guard, which had been ordered by Governor Orville E. Faubus to resist desegregation. The event made national headlines, and President Dwight D. Eisenhower countered Faubus by federalizing the Guard. When Green and his fellow students were finally escorted by troops into Central High on September 25, 1957, it marked the first time in 81 years—since Reconstruction had ended and Union troops were withdrawn from the South—that federal troops were used to protect African-American rights.

Still, safe entry into Central High was only the beginning of a long school year for the Little Rock Nine, particularly for Ernest Green, the only senior in the group. Chestnut remarks on his character's strength: "To be 17 years old, and in that time period to go to a high school where there are 2,000 of them and nine of you—because that's what it was, them and you,—it seemed to me that Ernest Green had to be a person of tremendous courage and tremendous determination. I respect that a great deal."

His character's determination is what Chestnut, a rapidly-rising star of television and motion pictures, most identified with. "When Ernest wanted to get into that school and graduate, you know, he showed great determination. He was going to do it and there was nothing that was going to stop him from doing it. When I got into this industry, I told myself, 'I'm going to do it and there's nothing that's going to stop me from doing it.'"

Unlike many actors, Chestnut did not have a childhood dream to grow up and become a successful actor. He had never taken an acting class because acting wasn't offered at his high school. And he emulated no favorite movie star because his parents, a sheet metal worker and a special education teacher, were his role models, and still are. But when Chestnut was assigned by his high school English teacher to perform a scene in class, he enjoyed it. Then when he was invited to see a friend perform in a play, he was intrigued. And later, when a younger friend who was attending Chestnut's alma mater said that his former English teacher still talked about how good he was in the scene he performed for class, Chestnut began to blaze his trail.

From far left: Morris Chestnut's first major role came when he played "Ricky Baker" in John Singleton's Boyz N The Hood. He can be seen currently on NBC in the sitcom Out All Night. While The Ernest Green Story was shooting, Chestnut met the real Ernest Green. "I was nervous," he says. "Because when you play someone, you want to do it right."

Chestnut enrolled in drama classes at junior college, and then took an acting class in Hollywood, just to see how he fared. "But I did it very quietly, because to me this was an endeavor that I wanted to keep between myself and whoever I had to tell, like my boss, so that I could get off for auditions," Chestnut says.

In 1990, when Chestnut landed his first major feature role as Ricky Baker in John Singleton's acclaimed film Boyz N The Hood, he had no idea that it would lead to his ultimate goal: the chance "to be a consistently-working actor" and "to make a comfortable living."

Then, in 1992, when auditions for The Ernest Green Story were being held, Chestnut had an acting job that conflicted with the audition date. Ironically, however, the Los Angeles riots erupted causing schedules to be changed, thus giving Chestnut the chance to audition. "It's almost as if it were meant to be," he says half-mystified.

During the first week of filming, the real Ernest Green, now a Washington D.C. investment banker, and a former Assistant Secretary of Labor in Jimmy Carter's administration, was on the set. "I was nervous," Chestnut recalls, "because when you play someone, you want to do it right. So the first week I asked him questions about particular incidents. I would be acting, but then I would be peeking out the corner of my eye to see if he approved of how I did certain things."

Green approved as Chestnut breathed life into the past, which in turn breathed a new life's vision into him. "Ernest's character gave me a greater appreciation for the way things are today in society," Chestnut says. "A lot of times people are the beneficiaries of what other people had to suffer to get. Ernest fought for integration for a lot of kids today, kids who don't even know what he and the others had to endure—going to different bathrooms, living in different sections of a neighborhood—so that we might have the opportunity to go to the same school as people of other races and different colors."

Chestnut adds, "I feel we have progressed only to a certain extent. Back then it was unorthodox to talk to a black person or to be nice to a black person or to open a door for a black person. So a lot of people were just scared to be different. But now, society has changed in the sense that everyone is more open and everyone is more of an individual. But I also think that the people who don't understand other races—they don't want to understand, and they're always going to be that way."

THE WALT DISNEY COMPANY PRESENTS THE AMERICAN TEACHER AWARDS

On December 6, telecast live from Hollywood, The Walt Disney Company Presents The American Teacher Awards pays tribute to one of America's most precious resources: the individuals who have dedicated their professional lives to educating America's young people. Presented in partnership with The Coca-Cola Company and Delta Air Lines, this year's gala event again features celebrity presenters, musical production numbers, and 36 outstanding educators. But the awards ceremony also marks the conclusion of a year-long labor of love. →

*Of having been selected
"The Outstanding Teacher of 1991"
last year, Ed Schroeder says,
"My life is never going to be the same again...I've been touched by that Disney magic."*

Indeed, almost as the curtain came down on last year's show, preparations for the the 3rd annual gala were under away. Applications were already flooding into the Center for Civic Education, which assisted in the development of The American Teacher Awards and which administers the selection process.

Evaluation of the applications began in March. "The selection committee is comprised of representatives from the nation's leading education organizations," explains Tam Taylor of the Center for Civic Education. "This year, we had a two-tiered level of review, one in Southern California, the other in Washington, DC." At the first level of review, the applications were winnowed down, and then forwarded to the committee in Washington, DC, where the field was narrowed to three teachers for each of 12 subject categories.

The criteria for the process, says Taylor, "are original ideas in teaching, commitment to the profession, and fine interaction in the classroom. It's difficult to make the selections," she adds. "There's such an array of outstanding teachers to choose from."

With the 36 honorees selected, camera crews from The Disney Channel fanned out across the country to create five to six minute profiles of the honorees. (All profiles will air individually on The Disney Channel as The Disney Channel Salutes The American Teacher; profiles premiere Tuesdays at 8:50 p.m., ET/PT, and encore Sunday at 3:50 p.m.) "We shot profiles at 60 school sites in 55 cities and towns in 30 states," says Patrick Davidson, who supervised the productions. "It's a wonderful and moving experience to meet so many fine individuals, in such a range of teaching situations."

From the teacher profiles, the final review committee ranks the three teachers in each category—and the outstanding teacher in each category is announced on The American Teacher Awards. From these 12 candidates, all 36 honorees select "The Outstanding Teacher of 1992."

The award-winning team of Smith-Hemion has been in charge of producing The American Teacher Awards since its inception. Producer Gary Smith notes that while the actual production process takes three months—from early September up to and including the show's debut—"we're always thinking about ideas for the show. It's an event we look forward to every year," he says. "What sets this awards show apart from any other is that the honorees are not entertainment stars but teachers. The result is the best "thank you" speeches of any awards show around: these teachers use their moment in the spotlight not for personal acknowledgement but to create wonderfully positive statements about teaching. We all get caught up in their excitement, especially our celebrity presenters." Smith adds that this year's musical productions in the program will be based on the theme of "My Favorite Teacher."

There are plenty of surprises in store for the third annual American Teachers Awards, but as Gary Smith observes, energy and exuberance and excitement are the hallmarks of the evening, as Ed Schroeder, selected the Outstanding Teacher of 1991 at last year's ceremony, can attest.

"I didn't believe this could happen to a junior high school teacher from Illinois," Schroeder says. "And what a year! My life is never going to be the same. I've had the opportunity during this year to travel around the country, speaking to people on education—parents, teachers and students. I have met some of the most wonderfully fascinating people."

"The American Teacher Awards are a touching tribute to teachers," Schroeder adds. "The teacher profiles shown during the ceremony, and on The Disney Channel throughout the year, give our country the opportunity to see the wonderful things happening in our classrooms. So much of the news we hear about education today is negative. But this program shows the positive—we do have a great educational system and it works. And The American Teacher Awards are the proof of that."

"Tickles"

Handcrafted with delightful personality,
just $49⁹⁵

Sitting on the grass on a Summer day, this playful baby boy decides to crawl over to Mommy and "help with the gardening." As he starts to get onto all fours, he bursts into a precious baby giggle. There, inching its way up his chubby little arm, is a furry caterpillar!

"Tickles" by artist Kathy Barry-Hippensteel is the first issue in Joys of Summer, a collection of happy babies discovering the magical wonders of the season.

"Tickles" is hand-crafted with head, arms, and legs of baby-smooth bisque porcelain. With his "ticklish" pose and his ear-to-ear smile, you can't help but laugh along with him. "Tickles'" eyes are squinted closed, and his hand-painted cheeks have the rosy blush from being in the sunshine. He's dressed in a cool, hand-tailored playsuit, and a matching hat to shade his fair skin. His furry critter can be positioned as if it were crawling up his arms or legs.

Recommended by Ashton-Drake, "Tickles" is certified Premiere Grade — your assurance of superior artistry and craftsmanship. As an heirloom-quality doll with exceptional credentials, he may be a wise investment as well.

Enjoy the fun of a baby's outdoor discoveries for only $49.95. But hurry... "Tickles" is issued in an exclusive, hand-numbered edition, so order today.

"Canyon of the Cat"
 In full color on fine porcelain Shown smaller than actual diameter of 8 1/4 inches
 ©1992 W. S. George

The mystical presence of a Native American spirit revealed ... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

Two North American Indian scouts move slowly across the stark winter landscape, guided on their journey through the deep canyon by a mystical presence—the mighty cougar who reigns over the region.

This glorious testament to the Indian message of a shared universe has been captured by renowned Western artist Julie Kramer Cole and re-created on a porcelain limited-edition collector's plate. And like exceptional collector's plates that command hundreds of dollars on the plate market, "Canyon of the Cat" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes.

Some exceptional plates appreciate in value; some plates go down, and many remain at or near issue price. But the edition of "Canyon of the Cat" is strictly limited to a maximum of 150 firing days, and demand is expected to be strong. So if you wish to obtain this plate at the $29.50 issue price, the time to act is now. To order your plate—fully backed by our unconditional 365-day guarantee—send no money now, simply complete and mail the coupon at right.

The American Legacy

REMEMBERING WOUNDED KNEE

ON DECEMBER 29, 1890, THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT'S WAR AGAINST THE PLAINS INDIANS CAME TO ITS BRUTAL END WHEN THE U.S. SEVENTH CAVALRY MASSACRED 146 MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN OF THE LAKOTA SIOUX, AFTER THE SIOUX WARRIORS REFUSED TO GIVE UP THEIR ARMS. ONE HUNDRED YEARS LATER, 300 LAKOTA RIDERS BRAVED SUB-ZERO WEATHER TO COMMEMORATE THE LIVES LOST AT WOUNDED KNEE. THEIR PURPOSE WAS THE TRADITIONAL CEREMONY WASHIGILA: "WIPING THE TEARS." ON DECEMBER 29, THE 102ND ANNIVERSARY OF WOUNDED KNEE, THE AMERICAN LEGACY PRESENTS WIPING THE TEARS OF SEVEN GENERATIONS, THE STORY OF THAT MEMORIAL RIDE AND CEREMONY, AND THE STORY OF THE LAKOTA NATION'S 100-YEAR BATTLE TO RECOVER FROM THE TRAGEDY OF WOUNDED KNEE.

Authentic M.J. Hummel

Time is running out to acquire this historic M.I. Hummel Collector Plate!

The Apple Tree Boy & Girl porcelain collector plate has been enthusiastically received by collectors. Now, production of this limited-edition plate is reaching the point where it soon will no longer be available except on the secondary market (that is, from individual collectors who had the foresight to acquire it directly from the Danbury Mint).

Historic Edition.

"Apple Tree Boy & Girl" combines two cherished collecting traditions — Hummel figurines and porcelain plates. It is alive with the Hummel magic that has enchanted generations of collectors.

This beautiful collector plate is available exclusively from the Danbury Mint and is the first issue in the M.I. Hummel Plate Collection. Each plate is individually hand-numbered and accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity. The total edition of this plate is limited to the production capacity of fourteen full firing days.

This product is licensed exclusively by ARS AG, Zug, Switzerland

Georgetown Collection
Artist's Edition

On the night she was born, the moon was new. The sky was filled with a thousand brilliant fires. So the child was named Many Stars. Now she has grown to be a beautiful girl, wise beyond her years . . . with eyes as quiet and deep as the midnight sky.

Many Stars is also a collector's dream come true. Created by renowned artist Linda Mason. Sculpted to perfection in fine bisque porcelain and lovingly painted by hand. Dressed in a traditional "buckskin" dress, richly decorated with elaborate beadwork.

Newest in the acclaimed "American Diary Dolls"™ collection, Many Stars will be issued in a hand-numbered edition, limited forever to 100 firing days. And she comes with her personal biography telling you all about her childhood growing up on the Great Plains.

Share the life of an original American girl. Send for Many Stars today!

Many Stars stands 15" tall.

It's amazing what your child can build with KinderCare Wooden Toys.

Our wooden toys were designed with the aid of the child-development experts at KinderCare® Learning Centers, nationwide. Every toy, from our Alpha Blocks to our Whistle Stop Trains to our Wooden Blocks was created to develop the whole child. And that's important. After all, what your child builds now will determine how things stack-up later in life.

A century ago, a stolen kiss made a maiden blush ... and every precious memento of romance and affection was treasured forever! In our modern time, we cherish these gentle keepsakes all the more, for they allow us to share in the timeless romance of Victoriana.

Now under the direction of John Grossman, the authority on Victorian "ephemera," a captivating array of these priceless Victorian treasures surrounds a tender image of "first love" on elegant porcelain. Introducing, "Dearest Kiss," the first limited-edition collector plate of its kind.

"Dearest Kiss" premieres a marvelous collection of extravagant Victorian keepsake collages on porcelain. Each will be adorned by the same lavish border of 23K gold lace, limited to a total of 28 firing days, hand-numbered, and accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity. "Dearest Kiss" is available exclusively from The Hamilton Collection. Our 100% Satisfaction Guarantee allows you to return any plate within 30 days of receipt for a prompt replacement or full credit.

With the continuing passion for "all things Victorian," a strong response for this first-of-its-kind Victorian keepsake collage plate is anticipated. Send in your order today!

Some kids use drink boxes to grow gardens.

And you can, too, by turning your empty drink boxes into planters for seedlings. Here's how:

1. Open top of drink box and rinse thoroughly.
2. Punch two small holes in bottom of box for drainage and place on a saucer.
3. Fill three quarters of the box with soil.
4. Sprinkle in a few seeds and cover with about one-quarter inch of soil.
5. Keep in a warm, sunny spot (like a window sill).
6. When your plants have grown to a healthy size, tear away the drink box and re-plant in your garden or a large pot.

While this is one way you can re-use drink boxes, actual drink box recycling efforts have grown to include over 1,000 pilot school programs in 13 states and curbside pick-up at over a half million homes. And we'll continue to work to keep this good thing growing. For information write: APC Recycling, P.O. Box 3794, Washington, D.C. 20007.

2-XL™. Now we're talking fun.

"Which animal holds the record for running the fastest? The greyhound or the cheetah?"

"The cheetah! That's easy!"

"Correct! You have impressed your little robot."

"Yes! I've gotten five in a row!"

"Now I'll search my memory banks for a hilarious robot joke."

"OK, 2-XL. Sounds like fun to me!"

2-XL is the talking robot kids never find boring. He doesn't just ask kids questions, he actually questions their answers, rewarding correct responses or encouraging a child to try again.

He's full of fascinating facts, funny jokes and interesting stories on everything from dinosaurs to DaVinci.

2-XL comes with a fascinating introductory tape. And there are lots more tapes that vary according to the age and interests of your child. With new titles all the time, boys and girls will be entertained for hours, days, months, even years, playing and replaying all the fun and excitement.

Give 2-XL to your children today. It'll hold their interest for many tomorrows.

2-XL. The Fun Never Ends.
